Description

We started almost 8 years ago as experts in Linux for embedded systems with the idea of providing consultancy services in the field of information technologies. Aside from consultancy work, our main focus is on embedded devices, mobile platforms and industrial electronics. Since then we have been involved in projects which brought a number of successful products to market. Thanks to our experience and well established process, we can guarantee a safe and trustworthy implementation as well as execution of all our projects. We currently supply and support customers in Industrial automation, Automotive, Finance, Healthcare and Security. Our goal is to be a partner of choice for innovation and innovative services in embedded development.
